THE SPHING AND SUMMER FARITIONS,-AS Congress is to remain here all summer, "society" will find the demands of the tollet constant as well will find the demands of the toiles constant as well as imperious. If Congressmen remain here, the ladies of their households will remain, and they, with the permanent lady residents of the capital, must be handsemely contuned. But they need he woder no apprehensions. Mr. William has imported, freshly from Parir and other cities, the richest and most beautiful adornments for the female form. If our lady friends should go to Philiadelphia or New York, they could not possibly find more tasteful articles; and the extra expense and fatigue of the journey would be lost. William is here of the journey would be lost. more tasteful articles; and the extra expense and fatigue of the journey would be lost. Willian is a low opening freshly made and imported Parisian ho onets, of exquisits style, black silk mantillas, mot ning robes, llama lace mantillas, white cloth costs, (wittable for spring.) salor hats for ladies, ladies, undergarments of all descriptions, nicely made; n. al laces, of exquisits workmanship; ribbons with the latest figures of bees, humming birds, etc.; modal, los sets of trimming for mantillas and dresses; med, illos and silver belt buckles; medalresearch willon and silver belt buckles; medal-ion hair usta, etc. The display of artificial flowers is quite pargeous, rivalling the richest con-orvatories, and in artificial hair, which is no-prepared with m uch taste. Willian's assortment is prepared with m was taste. William's assortment is unequalled. Right trasses, forty inches in length, and every variety of capillary ornaments are to us found there. We have mentioned only a few of the leading articles of fashionable femule wear, which attentive young ladies are a spensing to customers, under the direction of Mr. Mr. William, who are real a data in their profession. We should have added, a place way, that they have always a large assortion of Swehly imported perfumery of the celebra and Lubka's manufacture.

ENERGY OF RE-CONSTRUCTION A SPEECH SEPONE THE PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE The following is a telegraphic abstract of Gen. Sutler's speech, delivered by invitation of the Pennsylvania Legislature to that body on the 11th inst:

Hazarsuna, April II, 1868.

General Butler was edocated into the House by committees of the Senate and House, and delivered a speech over two hours long, in substance as follows: That we might at least rejoics over the cessation of armed hestilities, but had great cause for sorrow in reviewing the political swents of the present hour, which convinced us we had not yet gained all that for which we fought. When the rebol forces surrandered and their great leader was captured, the position of affairs at the South was captured, the position of affairs at the South was each that our impressions of loyalty would have been retained.

If the President and Congress had then punished Davis, who deserted his seat in the Senate, and dag more blood, had ordered those who had served in the rebel Congress, and those who had served in the rebel Congress, to leave its country in sixty days, and furfiel their part in the rebellion should not have political property and that those who had taken an active part in the rebellion should not have political property and that those who had taken an active part in the rebellion should not have political property and that those who had taken an active part in the rebellion should not have political property and that those who had taken an active part in the rebellion should not have political property.

had taken an active part in the rebellion should not have political property; and that those who not have political property in the rebellion should riod as an unuar artifact foreigner, then peace, Southern State ally would have reigned in every. The queer on now was simply whether these distincts and now of the same control of t positions.

In regard to the President, he would cheerfully welcome his return back to the principles of those who elected him, and would be giad to see him redem his promise of making traitors odious, although the only way he had as yet suggested of doing this was by admitting them to Congress [Laughter.] In regard to Geary, General Butterspoke of him as the best of soldiers and most retiable of statesmen, and concluded amid great applausa.

Mr. Ruddiman moved the return of the thanks, of the House to General Butler, which was agreed to, 60 year to 30 nays—a strict party vote.

Alten on Pellard.

Ex-Governor Allen, of Louisiana, writes in the Mexicon Times some hard words against Mr. Enwand A. Pollard, of the Richmond Examiner:

"Although the blood of Virginia's best and bravest is not yet dry in the valleys, nor has the grass grown over the premature graves of the manity Confederates who fell before Potersburg, yet Mr. E. A. Pollard, a pretty writer and a talented selfor, denounces ex-President Davis, Generals Lee, Johnston and Beauregard, and says the Southern people disgraced themselves forever when they refused to fight to extermination; that they lack courage and endirence.—Its estimate in that they lack courage and endirence.—Its estimates and intelligence. "He oriticises campaigns, ridicules strategical movements, ensers at retreate, and laughs at every herole effort of the brave man who have left to history an immortal name.

"Who is Mr. E. A. Pollard? He is a Virginian, the editor of the Richmond Econsiers, and the sauthor of the "Southern History of the War.! We have grief for the first, blushes for the second, and contempt for the last. * * Pollard wanted extermination, but he was in New York city, hob-nobbing with Greeley, and telling the pleasant story in his pleasant way of the four years' war. He wanted fifty thousand men to fight a million to the death, but he never fell in beside them, and preferred to shares common fate. Like Job's war-hores, he saufed the beatte frum after Shoddy is cheap, and humbug is cheap, and sincerity, faith, honor, chivairy, manhood, oh! how pure and unpopular."
